

What: Book Vendor Preview Event

When: Friday, February 26, 2010, 2:00—5:00 PM

Where : James H. Blake High School Media Center

Why: To offer media specialists an opportunity to see & examine recent print curriculum resources prior to ordering for next year.

What this is not: This is not the Curriculum Resource Expo of several years ago. There will be no online services vendors. This event is only for local book vendors so that media specialists can see, touch and skim new books. The evaluation and selection office will still be providing a list of trial subscriptions for online services to all media specialists from January 6 - March 26. Media specialists can all participate in the "Evaluation of Online Services" in-services for their service level in February. These sessions are listed on PDO.

Please join us: This event is being held on a professional day. MCEMSA is very aware that many media specialists (especially those on fixed schedules) have difficulty getting out of their buildings on regular school days and many others can not attend activities after school for various reasons. Therefore, the vendors will be set up from 2:00-5:00. You can join us whenever it is convenient for you; during the professional day or after your work day. Feedback from last year was very positive , so we are anticipating another successful preview event.

We hope to see everyone there!
